

Last Call to the Moon

(Pages from a small Diary)

Last call to the moon! The gates are closing. This is the last call to the moon. Your time is up.

Your eyes are not your own. Your feet have never walked.

You hear what cannot be, and try to feel your silence. Last call to the moon!

All these foreign words are dark and steal the breath of all those who are lost and all those who are waiting.

All these empty seats fill empty places in minds that will never, never rest.

Their eyes are not their own. Their feet have never walked.

They hear what cannot be, and try to feel their silence, colouring pale dreams that they have kept alive, not even seeing where the lines used to be,
journaling regrets without a reason, apologising, always without hope.
